CONNECTING WITH ISRAEL

Imagine Israel

Federation's multi-faceted Israel engagement initiative places a special focus on issues of social justice and civil society. Imagine Israel inspires, engages and educates Washingtonians through a variety of social impact-oriented programs, including:

Changemakers Series: Federation brings renowned Israeli agents of change to Washington to share how their work challenges the status quo and addresses some of the most pressing social issues in Israel.

Podcast: Federation's Imagine Israel Podcast connects listeners to a modern, relatable Israel in real-time, through stories from innovative Israeli influencers leading social change in Israel. Host Robbie Gringras, Creative Director of The Jewish Agency for Israel's initiative Makom, facilitates thought-provoking dialogues with Israeli activists whose lives, work and passions intersect in a unique way that impacts Israeli society. Episodes are available at shalomdc.org/imagineisraelpodcast.

Triangular School Partnership: In partnership with the NGO, The Abraham Fund Initiatives, Imagine Israel established a triangular school partnership among Charles E. Smith Jewish Day School, a Jewish Israeli school and an Arab Israeli school. During the 2016–2017 school year, teachers at all three schools worked intensively to build trust and develop a joint curriculum to be used in a high school classroom during the 2017–2018 school year.

Reverse Mifgash

Reverse Mifgash (encounter) is a 10-day immersive experience in Washington, DC, bringing together American and Israeli alumni of Birthright Israel: DC Community trips and members of the Greater Washington Jewish community for social, educational, cultural and religious programming. The American alumni open their homes to the Israelis, creating meaningful opportunities to learn from one another, build lasting friendships and deepen their connections to Israel and the Jewish community.

Jewish Women's Renaissance Project Partnership

In partnership with the Jewish Women's Renaissance Project (JWRP), Federation brings mothers from across Greater Washington on a year-long journey that includes an eight-day MOMentum trip to Israel, which inspires them to transform themselves, their families, their community and the world. The participants return from this eight-day experience with a deep, eternal connection to Israel, a profound kinship with each other and hearts filled with Jewish values. Once home, Federation ensures that the JWRP MOMentum trip participants stay connected through follow-up programs that keep the inspiration going and create bonds that extend not only within Greater Washington, but globally.

“This opportunity to journey to Israel, given to me by Federation and the JWRP, has connected me with women who have become my sisters, blessed me with the clarity to fulfill my dreams and inspired me to further my connection with Israel and engage more in my spirituality”

—Natalie West, Federation JWRP Mission Participant and Madricha (leader)

Incorporate Israel

TEEN ENGAGEMENT

Rena Wolinsky

Rena is a rising senior at Dominion High School in Northern Virginia. She is active in her community and a past participant of Federation's Margo & Yoram Cohen Family Israel Engagement Fellowship (IEF). Rena is a passionate advocate for Israel and uses what she learned from IEF to help her peers feel more comfortable talking about Israel.

Q What was your most important takeaway from IEF?

A For me, the most important takeaway from IEF was to always be open-minded and unbiased, because everyone has a different narrative, and there is always more to learn. This realization came to me during an eye-opening session of the IEF in which both a Palestinian and an Israeli told their narrative on the Israeli-Palestinian conflict and what they see as the pathway to peace.

Q How has your participation in a Federation teen program strengthened your Jewish identity?

A Participating in IEF allowed me to meet and connect with more Jewish teens in my community, strengthening my Jewish identity and connection to Israel in the process. Participating in Federation programs further inspired me to sign up to go to Israel for a month this past summer!

Q How do Federation's teen opportunities stand out from other youth programs?

A Federation's teen opportunities are unique because they have the most amazing, enthusiastic mentors and connect people across youth groups and synagogues. Federation also has numerous connections and opportunities outside of the weekly meetings to further engage participants. I spoke at a lovely Federation dinner about IEF, which helped me see the reach of Federation's programs and meet people benefiting from Federation's work.

Q How has your involvement with Federation better prepared you for college and beyond?

A My participation in IEF and the Teen Israel Committee has prepared me to counter any animosity Jews or Israel may face on a college campus with facts and passion, knowing I have many people whom I can turn to for support.

MULTI-GENERATIONAL FAMILY PHILANTHROPY

The Nussdorf Family

For more than 40 years, Melanie and Larry Nussdorf have been generous supporters of Jewish organizations in Greater Washington. They are passionate about passing on the values of community and philanthropy to their children and grandchildren. Larry serves as a trustee of Federation's United Jewish Endowment Fund (UJEF), and he and Melanie have chaired Israel@65 and the 2015 Israel YOUR Way mission. Their son Ben has been active with Federation for the past five years and currently serves as Vice President of Young Leadership.

Q What causes are most important to your family?

MELANIE & LARRY: The Jewish community, education at all levels and the Washington community at large.

BEN: We focus our charitable giving and philanthropic efforts on issues related to education, the environment, Jewish causes and children's issues, particularly in the DC region.

Q Of the values that your parents have passed on to you, what do you plan to impart to your own children?

BEN: My parents provided us with the values of community involvement and community service, as well as a focus on Jewish issues. Through Federation's Next Gen Philanthropy Program, I had the opportunity and the forum in which to discuss these issues. I hope to pass on the importance of being a community leader and the value of maintaining a strong involvement in the local Jewish community.

INNA (Ben's wife): Work ethic—a need to work hard to achieve success, and the corresponding need to be self-reliant. Family—kindness, love and loyalty to your family, above all else. Independence—understanding yourself, forgiving yourself for your flaws and ultimately being true to yourself. Perspective—to understand and appreciate your privileges.

Q How has your family benefited from Federation's multi-generational family philanthropy consulting?

MELANIE & LARRY: The Next Gen Philanthropy program has significantly changed our family's involvement in the community, and we think it is amazing. Charitable funds for our children and annuitizing our gift through a testamentary gift that will provide income to Federation in the amount we would have given were among the very constructive ideas.

Q What is your hope for the future of the Greater Washington Jewish community?

BEN: I believe we have a strong Jewish community, with established leaders and an energized youth base. I hope that we can enhance the cohesion within this community and continue to show the importance of being involved in the local Jewish community to Jews who live and work here and may not be currently involved with Federation or other Jewish causes.

Q What is the legacy you'd like to be remembered for?

MELANIE & LARRY: Giving back, humility and honesty. Working hard. Fierce loyalty to those we love. And lastly, stepping up to help when asked and before we're asked.

SECURING OUR FUTURE

With more than $209 million in assets under management, Federation's United Jewish Endowment Fund (UJEF) Trustees proudly approved distributions totaling $2.6 million to empower local and global partner organizations as they support innovative programs, like those listed here, and meet community needs in Greater Washington and in Israel.

Next Gen Philanthropy Program

Federation's Next Gen Philanthropy Program, through the support of UJEF, empowers the next generation of philanthropic families to become effective Jewish philanthropists, encouraging them to embrace their family legacies while developing personal philanthropic identities and exploring the richness of Jewish organizational life. Through overseas and local travel opportunities, robust dialogues facilitated by a scholar-in-residence and more, the participants reflect on their personal principles, learn about Jewish values and ethics surrounding philanthropy and build a network of peers to ensure a strong and vibrant Jewish community for the future.

Senior Programs

Hundreds of seniors throughout Greater Washington are "aging in place" while maintaining their physical and emotional health, thanks to multiple program and service offerings. Hot meals; transportation; exercise classes; arts and culture events; chorus groups; speakers and more enable seniors to socially connect with one another and the larger community. UJEF grants for senior programming support the work of:

- Behrend-Adas Senior Fellowship Program
- Coming of Age in Maryland
- Coming of Age in Northern Virginia
- Selma Sweetbaum Senior Satellite Program at HarTzeon-Agudath Achim

"As a widow, I value the senior programs at the JCCNV because they fill gaps in my life and help me get out of the house for social connections and educational opportunities."

—Virginia G., Coming of Age in Northern Virginia participant

Camp Shutaf

The innovative reverse inclusion model of Camp Shutaf makes an incredible impact on its 130 participants from the Greater Jerusalem area. Each summer, campers with and without disabilities come together for fun, friendship and the opportunity to learn from one another. And because Shutaf and UJEF believe that every camper should experience a meaningful summer regardless of their financial situation, a majority of Shutaf families pay significantly reduced tuition.

My son has mild cerebral palsy, vision impairment and epilepsy, and was routinely excluded from most camps. At Camp Shutaf, Josh has not only found a place he loves, but a place that trains him as a Junior Counselor. He learns responsibility, learns from his successes, takes safe risks and continues to grow. These are the tools, along with maturity and compassion, that Shutaf has bestowed on our son to equip him for his future.”

—Josh's mother

Impact L'Atid

Impact L'Atid, sponsored and run by BBYO and UJEF, gives local teens a social innovation platform and the opportunity to create projects to change the landscape of the Greater Washington Jewish community. Participants (known as Gamechangers) engage in workshops, work with talented mentors and are supported by their peers as they collaborate to turn their ideas into reality.

Venture ideas ranged from a pro-Israel concert to a Jewish trivia game, to a program to feed the hungry and beyond. The program culminated at an Innovation Showcase where Gamechangers pitched their ventures to the community. Today, UJEF is considering funding several of the innovative ideas.

STRENGTHENING JEWISH IDENTITY

InterfaithFamily/DC

InterfaithFamily/DC (IFF/DC), a partnership between Federation and InterfaithFamily, aims to broaden the inclusion of local interfaith couples and families by providing welcoming opportunities to learn about Jewish life in inviting, judgment-free environments, enabling them to feel confident in making Jewish choices.

With online content and materials, programs in partnership with PJ Library and Federation's Jewish Food Experience®, as well as a rabbi dedicated to interfaith couples and families:

- IFF/DC encourages conversations about issues and opportunities to learn about interfaith-family-friendly organizations and helps community members find Jewish clergy to officiate at life-cycle events.
- IFF/DC supports and encourages local Jewish professionals and clergy to deepen their work in areas of inclusion.

“The InterfaithFamily/DC Rabbi was an incredible resource to our family as we were searching for a way to infuse Jewish education into our son’s life. She met with me, listened carefully to what I was looking for and offered thoughtful suggestions that met our needs. It’s reassuring to know there are people in the DC area who can act as a resource to those of us seeking a less traditional, 21st century Jewish experience.”

—Lauren T.

Federation's Jewish Food Experience®

Federation's Jewish Food Experience® (JFE) (jewishfoodexperience.com) connects Jewish community members to their heritage, to their community and to one another. JFE's unique online and offline approach to engagement encourages Jewish community members to participate in Jewish life by making it easily accessible and welcoming through the language of Jewish food.

“JFE® is the ultimate connector, bringing together DC-area Jews of all stripes to share their diverse passions for food in creative ways, both online and offline.”

—Sarah Newman, food insecurity activist and international blogger

j.family ambassadors

For families with young children living in Northern Virginia, the j.family ambassadors initiative* makes the NoVa Jewish community more welcoming, inviting and accessible.

Ambassadors are trained to facilitate one-on-one meetings with new parents to help them connect with other families through opportunities like neighborhood playgroups and organized programming like Havdalah Hangouts. Additionally, ambassadors are designing small events in their micro-communities based on families' needs and interests, including a Mahjong group, a home beer-brewing party, a playdate for stay-at-home parents and events for single parents.

- 170 families have had one-on-one meetings with a j.family ambassador.
- j.family ambassador Rosh Hashanah Supper Circles ensured 21 families had holiday meals to attend with other families.

j.family ambassadors is presented by the Jewish Community Center of Northern Virginia.*

“ When I arrived in Virginia six years ago, I did not know anyone and we did not have any Jewish families in our neighborhood. It is great to connect with other Jewish families with children through the j.family ambassador program. We also enjoy attending other J programs, whether it is a mom’s night out or a family event. They all have been so fun and interesting. ”

—Syndy C.

Hillel in St. Petersburg

In partnership with the American Jewish Joint Distribution Committee, Hillel in St. Petersburg, Russia makes Jewish life vibrant and accessible for young adults through Shabbat celebrations, connection to Israel, educational events and meaningful volunteerism. Last year, Federation support made it possible for:

- 120 participants to visit Israel on Birthright trips
- 60 students and local young adults to celebrate Shabbat together every Friday night
- 40 young adults to attend lectures on Jewish themes
- 30 new leaders to graduate from Hillel’s young leadership program

DOING GOOD

Susie & Marion Haberman

Susie Haberman and her daughter-in-law, Marion, share a bond because of their passion for doing good. Federation's Mitzvah Mavens program offers the pair opportunities to spend meaningful time together, engaged in hands-on volunteer projects that bring smiles and joy to the people they benefit.

Q What led you to become active in Federation and specifically with Mitzvah Mavens?

SUSIE: The Jewish community of Greater Washington has held an important place in my heart since I moved to the DC area 33 years ago. Although I had been involved in Federation in the past, a personal invitation to join a new group called Transitions was an opportunity to get re-involved with Federation. Energetic and thought-provoking conversations with this network of like-minded women led me to continue my long-lasting friendships and develop new connections.

These friendships led me to attend a Mitzvah Mavens volunteer event where it was great to see women of all ages side-by-side helping others. I invited Marion to join me at one of the events. Soon after, Marion and I were asked to be on the committee for the following year. This sparked an excitement and interest in us getting involved TOGETHER in Federation as a mother/daughter-in-law team.

MARION: One of the most difficult parts of moving from LA to DC was having to learn about a whole new Jewish community and find a new place for me, but I knew I needed to involve myself in local Jewish life if I was ever going to feel like Bethesda was my home. When Susie invited me to join her at a Mitzvah Mavens event, I loved the idea that it was intended for a multi-generational audience. I see a lot of value and learning in that.

Marion, Max and Susie

Q During your volunteering, is there a story or moment that has stayed with you?

SUSIE: Marion and I co-chaired a Mitzvah Mavens event, making fleece blankets to donate to The National Center for Children and Families. During that event, a 12-year-old girl came up to me and said, "This is so much FUN! I love doing this and helping others." Her statement was so pure and honest. This is what volunteering is all about.

Q How do you inspire the next generation of volunteers to become involved?

SUSIE: The Mitzvah Mavens committee is a perfect blend of women of all ages. Each member of the committee reaches out to friends and family, encouraging them to participate, passing on the important value of giving back to the next generation. As Marion and I become more involved, we aspire to live the Jewish value of "m'dor l'dor," transmitting our passion for building community from generation to generation.

MARION: I love attending multi-generational events and bringing my baby, Max, to ones like Federation's Sara & Samuel J. Lessans Good Deeds Day. One time, he wore his "Mitzvah Mensch" Federation onesie, and the photos of him "helping" on his first mitzvah project are very special to me. I hope to foster within him a lifelong love of helping others.

Q How has working together inspired you to continue your involvement?

SUSIE: Volunteering with Marion warms my heart, is inspiring and is an energizing experience. Through Mitzvah Mavens we have formed a special bond—a mother/daughter-in-law duo!

MARION: Without Susie, I doubt I would have joined the Mitzvah Mavens committee. She had the idea of doing something together initially and that is what has kept me coming back. I am thankful for her encouragement and inspired by her example of generosity and kindness.

YOUNG LEADERSHIP CABINET

Brian Ashin

Brian Ashin is a member of The Jewish Federations of North America's National Young Leadership Cabinet. A father of four, he gives his time to Federation because he knows first-hand the incredible impact it has had—and will have—on his family and especially on the larger Jewish community.

Q A year ago, you chose to join 16 peers from Greater Washington and become a part of the National Young Leadership Cabinet. As you complete your second year, what have been some of your most important takeaways?

A My greatest takeaway as a member of Cabinet is the reaffirmation of how deeply committed our Jewish community is, both here at home and throughout North America, to building stronger Jewish communities. As part of Cabinet, we not only gain important leadership skills and learning opportunities, but we are led on a Jewish journey where we get the opportunity to see first-hand how our time and contributions tangibly improve Jewish lives and, in turn, strengthen our collective Jewish community.

Q You and 105 fellow Cabinet members traveled to India this year on the Cabinet Study Mission. What was your most memorable experience from that trip?

A We are always reminded that Federation's mission is to impact lives at home, in Israel and around the world—all lives, not just Jewish lives. My journey to India as part of the mission allowed me to see this with my own eyes. One day, we visited Om Creations in Mumbai where we had the privilege to see first-hand how Indian artists, subsidized by Federation philanthropy, teach mentally handicapped women who are ostracized in the community how to create works of art. This art is sold to visitors, empowering the women economically so that they may help support their family's income enabling them to lead more meaningful lives.

Q As a young professional and father of four small children, you must be very busy. Why make such a large commitment of time and philanthropy at this time in your life?

A I give to Federation because my family story has been immeasurably impacted by its support. My wife Marianna emigrated to the United States from the former Soviet Union with the help of Federation in 1989—the same year I started attending Capital Camps, a partner agency of Federation. Without Federation's assistance, I never would have met Marianna, and there would be no Sydney, Madison, Brayden and Sienna to come home to each day. And, as I like to say, without my kids, there is no me.

Q What aspirations do you have for our community?

A I aspire for our Jewish community to experience continued growth and prosperity, allowing the next generation of Jewish Washingtonians, including Marianna and my children, to experience a relevant and vibrant Jewish life.

Marianna and Brian Ashin with their children, Madison, Sydney, Sienna and Brayden

BUILDING COMMUNITY

Doing Good Initiative

Doing Good is Federation's social action initiative, focusing on giving back to the community through volunteer work. Year-round service projects across our community enable local volunteers to help those in need and inspire social change by feeding the hungry, caring for the earth, supporting seniors and more.

Doing Good fosters a vibrant Jewish community through meaningful opportunities for people of all ages to connect to each other and engage in tikkun olam (repairing the world).

Whether you are a family with young kids or a young professional looking to make a difference, Doing Good provides a way for everyone to give back. It has been amazing to see people of all ages and backgrounds come together to engage in hands-on social action projects that directly impact our local community and help those in need.

—Sophie Buslik, Doing Good co-chair

Congregational Innovation Grants

Today, synagogues are faced with a smaller number of congregants as Jews look for other venues to express their Jewishness. This challenging reality was the catalyst behind Federation's new Congregational Innovation Grants program. With the aim of reaching the wider community, area congregations were invited to develop new initiatives that would create meaningful, relevant and welcoming experiences for those looking to connect Jewishly. To date, $100,000 has been allocated to seven congregations:

- Adat Shalom Reconstructionist Congregation
- Beth El Hebrew Congregation
- B'nai Israel Congregation
- Chabad of Potomac
- Ohr Kodesh Congregation
- Shaare Torah
- Washington Hebrew Congregation

My whole family is so thankful for the inclusion track at Washington Hebrew Congregation, which was funded by Federation's Congregational Innovation Grants. Every Sunday after school, our daughter Maya can't wait to teach me everything she has learned. She feels very Jewish and her community is important to her.

—Marcelo S., Maya's dad

Federation's Congregational Shlichim Program

Federation's Congregational Shlichim Program, in partnership with The Jewish Agency for Israel, deepens Greater Washington's connection to Israel by bringing a delegation of cultural and educational shlichim (emissaries) to our synagogues and schools. These cultural ambassadors are fully integrated into the community, sharing their thoughts, feelings and perspectives during one-on-one conversations, Shabbat dinners, community events, education sessions and more.

“Congregational shlichim have helped the “true” Israel—not just the headlines but the cultural, sociological, historical, nuanced big picture—come alive and lodge deeper in the hearts of countless folks within and beyond our community. We are most grateful to Federation and The Jewish Agency for Israel for enabling this innovation, which we heartily recommend for other congregations as well.”

—Rabbi Fred Scherlinder Dobb,
Adat Shalom Reconstructionist Congregation

Inclusive Early Childhood Education

Greater Washington's 52 Jewish Early Childhood Centers offer our youngest learners and their families the experience of being joyfully Jewish. Our community's preschools lay the foundation for lifelong Jewish engagement of children—and their parents—and emphasize the value of inclusion. Federation partners with our ECE Centers to advance inclusion by offering various workshops and courses to enhance educators' skills with disability and inclusion training. Together, we are strengthening our community, connecting individuals and families to programs and services and providing tools to raise awareness as well as advocate for the rights of individuals with disabilities.

Our role is to be accepting of everyone. When our preschool students see their friend Max (pictured, on a BEAM robot) participating fully in their classroom activities, they see him as a child just as they are, with the same needs. He's different, and yet he's very much the same.
